

Nils Erikson's third solo piano album Confessions for a Piano is finally here. It's rooted in the same impressionist soil as the former albums Secrets for a Piano and Revelations for a Piano. However, this time the roots go deeper and wider.

One important difference is the way in which the album is released. Secrets was first published on CD and then as streaming files (Spotify, Apple Music etc). Revelations is only available as streaming files.

Confessions takes a step away from this and is released on reel-to-reel magnetic tape only, 100% analogue.

Still, any buyer of this exclusive product will be personally authorized to redistribute it digitally in any way, without paying any royalties. The only prerequisite is to clearly state the source and not put the music along any illegal or offensive material.

The numbered and signed reel-to-reel magnetic tape has a colour printed cover and will cost 114€, shipping within Sweden included. The default format is 1/4-inch tape width with 2 tracks on a 7 inch reel at 7,5 inches/second. Other formats, such as 4-track tape, are possible on request.

Each tape is made on-demand on a Revox B77 MkII, directly from the original grand piano recording. The album is 35 minutes long and contains ten all new pieces. A YouTube teaser is available here:
